

Published: July 31, 2007 6:00 a.m.

Furthermore ...

IT'S NOT THE football stadium he hinted at, but Ball State University alumnus David Letterman will soon have his name on a campus building.

BSU's new Communication and Media building will be named in honor of Letterman, class of 1970. Letterman, host of CBS' "Late Show with David Letterman," got his start in broadcasting at the campus radio station, where he infamously introduced "Clair de Lune" with "You know Mrs. Lune and all the little loonies ...". Appropriately, WBST-Radio's offices will be in the new $21 million building.

There's a northeast Indiana connection to the new building, as well. Fort Wayne's MSKTD and Associates designed the building, and the general contractor is W.A. Sheets and Sons, also of Fort Wayne.